THE MEMORY OF 'FLYING TRIANGLES' STILL DISTURBING DERBY WOMAN TWENTY YEARS LATER!

The 'Derby Telegraph' of the 7th May 2015 carried a letter written by a Mrs MD Fleetwood of Doncaster, enquiring if anyone could offer any information on her sighting of a black triangular object, hovering over her house during the early 1990's.....

During the 1980's and 90's, I worked at Rolls-Royce on the switchboard and I lived in Harcourt Street, Derby.

One particular night (I am coming up to 82 years old and can't recall the dates) I'd arrived home at around 10.30pm and let the cat into the back garden, where she sat rigidly staring up into the sky. I went to see what it was she was looking at and, above my head, what I saw was a huge black triangular shaped object just hanging there, making no sound. It stretched over mine and the neighbours garden either side of our house.

I immediately thought of the students who lived in a house a couple of doors down as they were always up to something.

After looking up for what seemed like ages, I picked up 'Ginny' (the cat) and started backing towards the back door, then still silently, the shape started to move slowly towards Gerard Street and then swiftly up Burton Road.

I thought I was going mad and I told my son, who agreed!

Then within a couple of days, the Evening Telegraph reported that a lady walking her dog in Littleover and two policemen driving home down Burton Road had also reported something similar.

I would really like to find out if anyone remembers this incident and can tell me when it happened.

Mrs MD Fleetwood (Doncaster). The OVNI Editor replied to the appeal for 'Flying Triangle' information as follows:

The 'Phenomenon Research Association (Derby) has been investigating UFO's for many years and particularly 'Flying Triangles'. Mrs MD Fleetwood may be interested to read that the PRA has exchanged data on 'Flying Triangles' with other groups.

The first sightings of this unknown craft were made in the Hudson Valley area of the USA in 1983. This was followed by world wide reports and by a major event in Belgium during 1989/90, when the Belgian Air Force scrambled F16 fighters to try and intercept the mysterious 'Flying Triangles'.

A Special Report by Major-General Wilfred de Brouwer, Deputy Chief, Royal Belgian Air Force

The General states:

“In any case, the Air Force has arrived to the conclusion that a certain number of anomalous phenomena has been produced within Belgian air space.

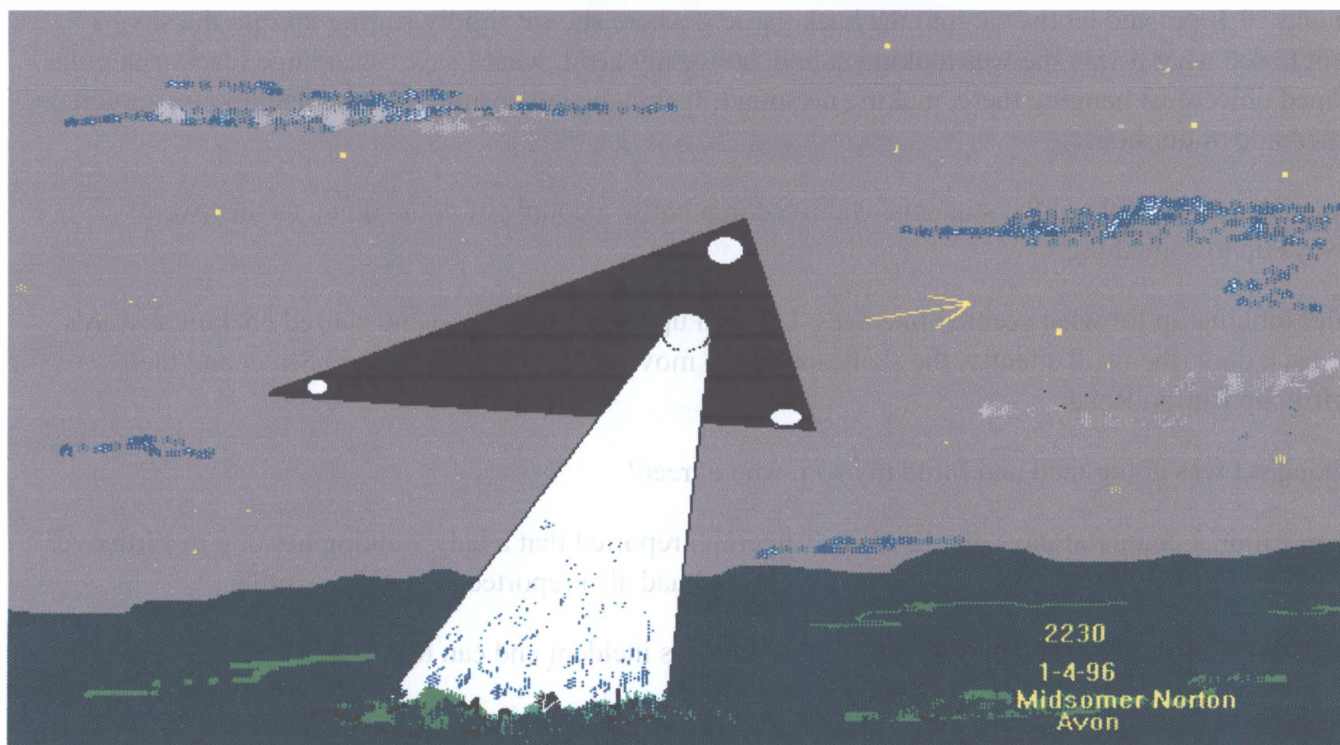

The numerous testimonies compiled by SOBEPS in their book, reinforced by reports of the night of March 30-31 (1990), have led us to face the hypothesis that a certain number of unauthorized aerial activities have taken place.

Until now, not a single case of aggressiveness has been signalled; military or civilian air traffic has not been perturbed nor threatened. We can therefore advance that the presumed activities do not constitute a direct menace.

The day will come undoubtedly when the phenomenon will be observed with technological means of detection and collection that won't leave a single doubt about its origin.

This should lift a part of the veil that has covered the mystery for a long time. A mystery that has continued to the present. But it exists, it is real, and that in itself is an important conclusion.”

A 'Flying Triangle' from the PRA Files.

A 'Flying Triangle' flew low over Anthony Carr at Midsomer Norton. Avon at 10.30pm on the night of 1st April 10th 1996. It made a low humming sound and shone a searchlight type of beam onto the ground. The speed of the FT was estimated to be 30-40mph.

'The Flying Triangle Mystery' booklet by Omar Fowler (24 pages A4 £5 incl. P&P Cheques to the 'Phenomenon Research Association.) contains a wealth of information on FT sightings & reports from around the world and includes colour pages. (See over).

While driving home from work at 5pm on 3/12/94, Mr Andy' Emmerson, an amateur astronomer noticed a bright light in the sky. He drove to a nearby hill and observed a 'Flying Triangle' approach and hover over the countryside. It then shone a beam of light to the ground. (Obsvd. approx. 1/2 hour: Sutton-in-Ashfield, Notts.)

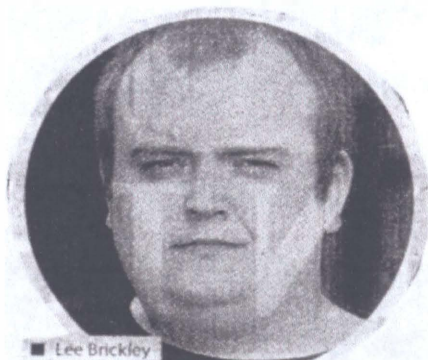

On the 26th September 1993 at 9.30pm, a huge black 'Flying Triangle' flew low over Bakewell, Derbyshire. It performed several manoeuvres over the town and was seen by numerous witnesses. A van driver travelling in the same direction as the 'Flying Triangle', overtook it while travelling at a speed of 40mph.

CANNOCK CLOSE ENCOUNTER SPARKS UFO ALERT

(From the Sunday Mercury 29 March 2015)

(By Mike Lockley)

Lee Brickley

Hannah Hiles

Hundreds of householders reported hearing a loud drone, then spotting the massive object move slowly over their homes!

A strange craft spotted moving slowly and loudly across the night sky has sparked off a UFO frenzy.

Hundreds of Cannock (Staffordshire) householders took to social media after first hearing a loud drone, then spotting the massive object move slowly over their homes.

Many believe that there is a very earthly explanation for a Close Encounter that has the community buzzing.

Locals in the Staffordshire town believe they saw a secret military prototype, possibly from a US aircraft carrier currently stationed off Portsmouth.

The British UFO Research Association has not discounted claims that a drone might be responsible for the rash of reports.

One thing is for sure, the people of Cannock saw something!

The area has been a UFO hotbed since the early 1980's but last weeks incident is the biggest in terms of the sheer volume of sightings.

Shortly after the X Files incident at around 9pm on Tuesday (24th March), Facebook sites were awash with details of the UFO alert.

One individual posted: "My house was rumbling and I'm still shaking. It was slow and it was huge."

Another wrote: "Way too slow for fighter jets. It flew directly over our house, made a sharp left turn and carried on."

The craft, sporting three red lights, was so low that many feared it was a plane in trouble.

Paranormal investigator Lee Brickley witnessed the same phenomenon and began blogging as the drama unfolded. He described the thunderous rumbling as like a WW2 bomber.

"Before anything could be seen with the naked eye, there was a deep and very loud droning" he said.

"After about three minutes, the craft came into sight. It seemed incredibly large and astonishingly low in the sky, with three red lights that were noticeable."

"The UFO travelled very slowly and many people thought it was about to crash."

Lee claimed you could still hear the growl of the engines after the mystery machine disappeared."

Cannock journalist Hannah Hiles, who has worked for the Sunday Mercury, was also alerted by the thunderous noise.

"It was ever so loud and it went on for quite a while" she said. "It was much more prolonged than a military jet, It was very curious."

Another resident described the sound of jets followed by a loud whirr, akin to propellers.

The reports (and Lee is still collecting them), have spawned three theories:

- Members of the public did see something from another planet or...
- They witnessed a plane in distress, or
- They saw an experimental military craft - a so called "black project" - being tested over Staffordshire.

Lee added: "I've checked on line with flight tracking services and have concluded that it would be impossible for this to have been a plane in trouble. There simply weren't any flights in the area at that specific time."

"I also contacted Birmingham Airport to make sure and they confirmed none of the flights leaving or arriving at the airport experienced issues that would have led them to fly so low."

A number of recent UFO alerts have turned out to be drones, BUFORA, which takes a sceptical view of alien claims, reveals that could well be an explanation for Tuesday nights sightings.

A spokeswoman said "I'm sure it is something that can be explained. Whether it will be explained is another matter."

"There are so many drones around"

She stressed that tests of secret military machines are fact, not fiction.

"Development of new black projects - military hardware and vehicles can take between 20 and 30 years."

"We are not going to know about the developments and tests that go on . There are so many reasons why people see things in the sky."

OVNI Editor Comments:

After being in the UFO study business for numerous years, I am somewhat amazed by the comments being made by journalists and BUFORA representatives about this UFO incident.

It seems that many people are still living in the past and making comments that are similar to those that were made back in the 1950's!

"Did it come from another planet?" A remark that shows the lack of modern thinking which these days is more 'Interdimensional'. Using energy thrusters of some type, to move from one planet/galaxy to another (in how many 'light years'?) is currently 'old hat'.

We must have learnt by now that 'Black Projects' are not developed or flown over populated areas and that experimental aircraft are tested in remote parts of the country.

To compare the noise to a WW2 bomber (who is old enough to remember that sound) and to state that it could take '20 to 30 years to develop such a craft' grossly underestimates the capabilities of the aircraft industry (both in the USA and the UK).

A key point of interest is the lighting configuration on the craft..."three red lights".

This is no way a modern navigation or identification pattern of lights and if anything, is similar to the much reported 'Flying Triangle' type of craft referred to earlier in this issue of the OVNI.

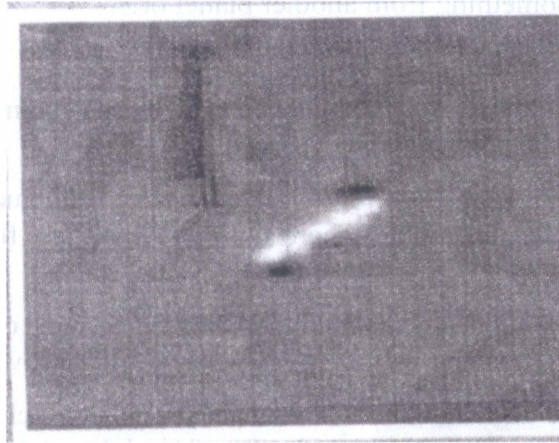

The question arises "Did anyone photograph this object?"

In this day of mobile/smart phones and clever tablets surely there must have been someone around with one of these handy recording devices!

STRANGE UFO CRAFT SPOTTED OVER BIRMINGHAM 11th MAY

(Mike Lockley: SUNDAY MERCURY May 17th 2015—Abridged Report by PRA)

What's going on? A fleet of strange spacecraft have been spotted in the sky over Birmingham - by a Marvin Gaye impersonator.

And Mike Bedward has heard it through the grapevine that extraterrestrials are drawn to spectacular scenes, such as dazzling sunrises and rainbows. The Stechford singer didn't know what he'd inadvertently caught on camera until he studied pictures of the rainbows. It Takes Two, apparently to attract aliens.

The 44 year-old was intrigued by the shrapnel-type flecks against the rainbow, snapped at 6.30pm on Monday (11th May). Zooming in on the images revealed the shining silvers to be cigar-shaped crafts in the blue sky over Alum Rock, Birmingham. He also captured a strange vapour trail.

Mike said "I was trying to take a picture of the rainbow-it was only later that I noticed the shapes. I'm not saying they are UFO's, although I am a believer. I'm saying I can't explain what I've pictured and neither can other people."

"The crafts are rectangular and glow like strip lights. I've seen strange things in the sky before, but this is the first time I've had a camera with me." He added "I believe UFO's are attracted to beautiful things like rainbows."

Birmingham UFO Group believe there's a decidedly earthly, even mundane explanation for Monday's phenomenon. Chairman Dave Hodrien has been quick to point out that "it's very rare that we see a picture and think 'Wow'. It's very rare that we see something that can't be explained."

"In this instance the probable explanation is 'lens flare', a scattering of light in the lens system. It has nothing to do with the rainbow. It's caused by sunlight."

It's not the first time that 'Alum Rock' (Birmingham) has been in the grip of a Close Encounter.

On November 3, 2010, the authorities were contacted, following reports of a large black object moving slowly across the sky.

Witness Paul Ryan, who spotted the craft at 7pm, reported "It was a very large object, which I could tell by the sets of lights in three corners. In each corner there were many different coloured flashing lights, very bright and changing colours very quickly. The object appeared to be flying very low and very slow. It was also completely silent."

‘The Watchers: Physical Evidence’

Mysteries from the Bible! (By Omar Fowler)

PRA members were shown a new DVD from the USA ‘Watchers: The Physical Evidence’ at the last PRA meeting on 26th May.

The DVD covered numerous discussions with long established researchers and at one point, there was a mention of the mysterious Biblical figures that appeared and may have been extraterrestrial.

For some time I have been studying the origins of mysterious figures mentioned in the Bible and have wondered why they have not generally been referred to in the stories of the life of Jesus.

I have given some examples below of the mysterious figure (s) seen in the empty tomb of Jesus at the time of his disappearance.

• St.Matthew: Chapter 28 1-7

In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And behold there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow:

And for fear of him the keepers did shake and became as dead men. And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

St.Mark: Chapter 16 2-8

And very early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun. And they said among themselves, who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre? And when they looked they saw the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted. And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here; behold the place where they laid him.

But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.

St.Luke: Chapter 24 1-8

Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.

And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre. And they entered and found not the body of Lord Jesus. And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold two men stood beside them in shining garments;

And they were afraid and bowed down their faces to the earth; they said unto them, Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here but has risen.

St.John Chapter 20 1-12

The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre.

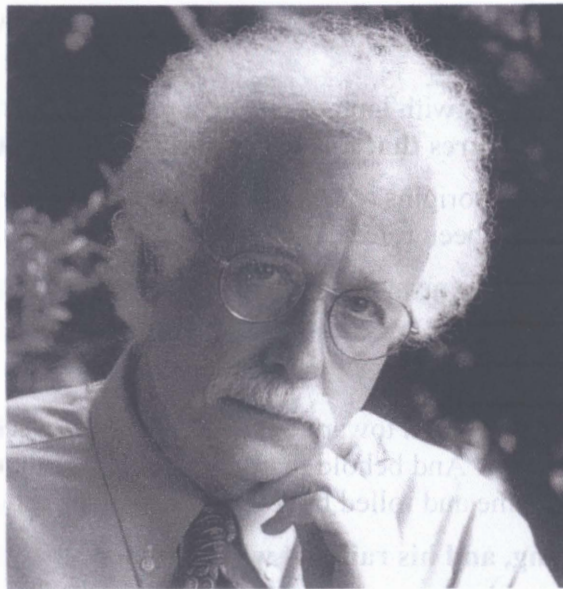

But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept she stooped down and looked into the sepulchre.

And seeth two angels in white sitting, one at the head and the other at the feet where the body of Jesus had lain.

And they say unto her, Woman why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him. (End of Bible Refs.)

The Life and Work of David M Jacobs, Ph.D.

DAVID M. JACOBS, Ph.D., is Associate Professor of History at Temple University in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and is Director of the International Center for Abduction Research. A pioneer in the field of UFO research and the abduction phenomenon, he is a specialist in the social and cultural history of the United States during the twentieth century. Since 1978 he has taught the only regularly scheduled undergraduate university course on UFOs in the country. He lives with his family in a suburb of Philadelphia.

Part 1 of his talk at Manchester University 22nd August 1992

Some of you may know that I recently published a book called 'Secret Lives' on abductions, and what I'll be talking about today is sort of taking on from what Jenny Randles was talking about, and filling in somewhat, and basically telling you about what I've discovered and my colleague Budd Hopkins has discovered in the States about the abduction phenomena.

Now let me say a few words to the wise, everything I say you have to absolutely and positively disbelieve. No matter how hard I try, there's no possibility that I have avoided error. I'm going to be wrong! What I'm going to talk about today is subject to interpretation, is subject to reversal, and other people might do the same amount of research and come up with, so consequently since we are at a University and we are all therefore De Facto students, it is up to you to make a judgement as to whether or not what I'm saying makes any sense or not.

OK. The question is who am I? Well, in most areas of research one does not have to deal with that question. When it comes to UFO's everybody, and his sister, is a self styled expert, and there is millions, if not billions, as Carl Sagan would say, of experts running around telling the, quote, "The truth", unquote, about the UFO phenomena and if any of you have been involved in this on any level, the longer you're involved with it, the more confusing it becomes, and the more difficult it becomes to separate the wheat from the chaff, if I may use that phrase.

The problem here is that there has been up until recently very few standards for investigation, very few standards for research, and very few standards for, quote, "Belief", unquote, when we're dealing with this phenomenon. So anybody who says anything has as good an opportunity of being believed as anybody else, even though there is a tremendous variation in what is behind, in terms of the knowledge the person has, what is behind those statements. With me you have to be careful as well.

Now my own background. I started reading in this subject around 1965, as I can best remember. By 1970, I had read most of the major books in the area ever written which is not saying a whole lot. It sounds good, but in 1970 there weren't that many books written on this subject, and there were only a handful really that would have any value. There was quite a lot of contactee material in the fifties and sixties. Now contactees were people who claimed to have on going contact with benevolent space brothers, who were here to cure cancer and stop wars, and most of these contactees were charlatans. Some were confessed charlatans who tried to make some money off of the flying saucer craze, they succeeded actually. They complicated matters tremendously and there was a huge amount of literature on contactees as late as the 1960's, a lot of which I read as well.

By 1971 I was a graduate student in history at an American university, the university of Wisconsin, and I elected to do my doctoral dissertation in the field of the UFO controversy, that is to say, I wound up writing a dissertation about how the society had confronted the phenomenon of people saying that they're sighting the outside shells of objects, which is what it boils down to. This had to do with the scientific community, the American military, the government, the lunatic fringe, the national UFO organisations, the press, the entertainment industry and so forth, and how they all sort of danced together as this phenomenon appeared in front of them.

I wound up getting my Ph.D. in 1973, and since then I have continued to work in the subject, and I teach a course at Temple university, which is a different style of teaching than here. Its a course that meets three times a week for three lectures a week for four and a half months, and it is the only regularly scheduled course on the subject in the United States in any major university. I have also published my dissertation as a book in a university press, and it is the only pro UFO book ever published by a university press, in any country, and I've published many other articles and done talks, done a lot of research, etc,etc and about ten years ago I became interested in the abduction phenomena

Now we all knew about abductions, everybody knew Barney and Betty Hill for example, which in America is one of the most famous of all case, where an inter-racial couple claimed that they were taken on board a UFO, given a physical examination, and then released. It wasn't until I met Budd Hopkins, about ten years ago, who introduced me to people he had been working with, other abductees, that I became very, very interested and, however, it wasn't until 1986, that I began to do my own research on the subject.

Now the problem is, how does one do research in abductions?. Well this is a problem of enormity actually, because we had known about the abduction phenomena, and by 1986 we had quite a lot of abduction cases, Budd Hopkins had published missing time in 1981 and maybe there were a couple of hundred in the popular press, that had already been written about, most of them uninvestigated, that is to say, just recovering a persons conscience.

Hypnosis however, early on had been shown to be the way to go, because in hypnosis, for some reason or another, and we don't understand this, people can remember events that they have been trying to remember for years and years and years and they suddenly remember them. Its not as if the hypnotist or the hypnotherapist, is pulling memories out of them, its as if hypnosis unlocks a gate and the memories are released, which is the best way you can put it.

However, even with that, most of abduction stories were sort of all over the place, people would remember having a physical examination, then the sky was the limit, then anything and everything could happen to them, with aliens who looked this that, they looked every way you could possibly conceive of. There was religious things involved with it, depending on the persons own religion obviously. There were er.. you couldn't tell what was happening, not only that but I couldn't get a sense of chronology, what happened during the time of the abduction, from the time the person was sitting there watching football on the television, they realise something is wrong in the room, until they come back from the abduction event.

What is the sequence of events, from second to second to second all the way through to the end?, was there such a thing?, was there a beginning, a middle, and an end?, now there appeared to be in the Barney and Betty Hill case, she remembered all sorts of things happening to her and Barney remembered things happening to him, there was an end. They were let go. They watched the object leave, well this suggests that its true, but in a lot of them it was difficult to tell, so I knew that if I was going to do research in this subject, I would have to do something that would have never occurred to me in a million years that I would ever do, and that is hypnotise people.

Having never been hypnotised myself and always being slightly afraid of it, I just decided I had to do it, which meant that I learned how to do it, and the first thing I learned was hypnotising people is about the easiest thing a person could do on this earth, because the hypnotist doesn't actually do it, the person lying on the couch or sitting on a chair does it. If they want to be hypnotised they will, if they don't want to be hypnotised they won't, that's just the way it is. For example, I will have people sit in front of me, lay on a couch during an induction that will bring them into an hypnotic state, their wife or husband or friend will be sitting next to me, the person on the couch is in a quote, "trance", unquote, the person sitting next to me has heard all the same words all at the same time, and nothing, there sitting there bored, wondering when its all going to be over, so hypnosis is not hard its extremely easy, its asking the right questions, the right way with the right inflection, at the right time, that's extremely difficult, that is hard to do.

Now the problems before was that people simply did not know how to do it well enough and they didn't have a sense of what the abduction phenomena was, so that they couldn't know what questions to ask and when people confabulated, that is to say when they made things up under hypnosis, which people will do, they could not understand the confabulation was taking place, so consequently you get cases like the Betty Andreason affair, they maybe some people that may have read the book 'The Andreason Affair' where she sees a giant bird rising from the ashes, phoenix like, that is confabulation on one level, at least it is something that did not happen, she might have thought it happened, but it didn't actually happen.

Most UFO researchers do not understand that these things occur and I began to realise as I did my own work that this was extremely important to understand and not only that but I began to find that there were other things that enshrined themselves upon the account which were not reliable as well. For example first of all people just don't remember, it doesn't matter, if he does or not, memory is faulty, all sorts of studies have shown that they'll hypnotise somebody back to where they were ten years old, and they're sitting in school, and they'll have them say who was sat at the front of them, who was sat at the side of them, and sat behind, and then they'll go and get a school yearbook and see if those kids were even in his class, and many times they weren't there at all, the guy had just made it up, got confused, it doesn't matter if its hypnosis or not, memory is faulty, confabulation takes place and as I did this one where I began to realise that there are procedures that are performed on abductees which place memories in their minds, which seem so real to the abductee they cannot tell the difference and the memories did not happen, that was also something that was totally unknown by other researches at the time I began to do this,

The very first person who I ever hypnotised in essence, a young woman, we did the first session, out came this abduction event, she was laying on this table, she was only six years old, her clothes were off, they were doing this to her they were doing that to her, then they walked down this hall, she had an experience with some beings in the hallway, they took her into a room, there was a meeting of a council, they talked about her, her growth, her development etc., etc. My tape recorder failed on that very first session, I didn't get a thing, so in a sweating passion after she left I tried to typewrite everything I could possibly remember from what she said, but I decided I would do this one again and we did it approximately 3 or 4 months later we went back and did the session and when we did it again there she was, actually she was with a friend watching some kids play base ball on a hill side and the next thing she knew was being lifted up, and she was taken aboard this object, and she was on this table, they were doing this, doing that, and then, everything changed. The beginning part was correct, then they did this? and just let her go, and I said what about when you were walking away, and she had to touch something, "No, that didn't happen" well what about the council, they were all talking about you, you're growth and all that? "No that didn't happen either" she'd just made it up, she didn't realise it the first time, the second time she realised it, and I said to myself we've got to be careful here, this is treacherous water here, we've got to be extremely careful.

Well what I did then was I began to take these accounts as people told me and place them here off to the side, I'd get another one and another one and another one and I sort of sharpened my questioning techniques and I began to be much more careful and cautious about what I did and eventually patterns began to develop, if a person said something I had never heard before, I'd put it up here, or on the back burner as we'd say, and I just waited, if it was never confirmed by anyone else, it just stayed there. However if another person began to say the same thing, who did not know this person, of course loads of this material had also not been published, then we begin to build up a pattern and another person says it, and the next thing you know got something here.

This is what I did, and what I'm going to talk about today is, as I slowly ease into this, is basically, what abductees, people who are having abduction experiences, have told me, and what patterns these come out, these kind of make into. Some of you have read my book, so this is going to be a little bit of old hat for you, but for those of you that haven't its different from what other UFO researchers have yet developed, and they may never develop it ultimately, but basically its what I've found out. On the board I'll draw this now. Now we only have a small board here, so I guess we'll have to draw with binoculars or something. But essentially I began to take the experiences that they had and divide them into three areas, primary experiences, secondary experiences and ancillary experiences.

Primary experiences I found most people were saying, during most abduction sequences, that is to say, they seemed to happen to everybody at one time or another, and in general, they happened all the time, or even during almost every abduction sequence, not everyone of course, but almost everyone. Secondary experiences, were experiences that happened to some people often, to most people once in a while, but you couldn't count on these almost every time. For example in the primary experience almost everyone described having an exam (examination) where as in secondary experiences many people described having machines, machine examinations, after the exam, but not always, and some people hardly ever. However, most people over the course of their lives will have it. And then there is ancillary experiences, some people will never have this, some will have it only once in a while, and the ancillary experiences seem in some way related to the other procedures. I wanted to say tertiary, because that would make logical sense, but tertiary had an aspect to it that seemed distant, and far removed, and even less important, and I didn't want to say that, so I made it into ancillary.

Well on that level of frequency, I began to realise that people were having physical experiences, things were done to them, to their physical bodies for various reasons, like exams. Mental experiences, there were mental examinations actually being conducted, and reproductive experiences as well. Now unfortunately I'm going to actually talk about these because we believe that this is the hub of the abduction phenomena, and if I may generalise dangerously, the UFO phenomena in general.

But the physical experiences, basically people say that they have examinations, not the kind of examination that you or I would have in a physicians office. For example, we don't have any cases of these beings, and I'm making a tremendous amount of assumptions here, I'm assuming that this is happening, I'm assuming that there is beings, you have to remember to take all that stuff for what its worth, but its hard to talk about this without making these assumptions, the beings, never, we don't have a single case of them listening to any bodies heart!, which of course is done in every physical examination in a Doctors office normally. This is not part of the abduction phenomena as we see it, now if this were internally generated, if people were just dreaming this up, well sure they'd listen to their hearts, some of them would say that obviously. Some people would say that they'd got a stethoscope or whatever and listened to their heart in some way. We don't have that, it just never comes up.

The examination is conducted by several beings usually at once, one is at the foot of them, or one of them is at the head of them, and one is on either side. They take their fingers and run them, in what I call a touch procedure over their body, sometimes poking, sometimes pinching, sometimes flexing, generally speaking running over their body. As one woman said it felt as if someone was playing piano on her, or another one said it felt like someone was playing a typewriter, was working a typewriter on them. What this means we don't know, what this accomplishes is any ones guess.

Most abductees will describe this (however, that's something that's never been written about. Once again most of these things that I'm saying, you know, are not in the literature. They could not have found this even in the most esoteric literature. A few things they may have picked up here and there, but most not.) Turn them over on their back and then they take their thumb, if I may use that, I don't know whether they have a thumb, but whatever is there, and their finger, and slowly manoeuvre, manipulate each vertebrae all the way down their spine paying particular interest to the coccyx, the tail bone and, back up a little bit, and back down, back up a little bit, back and up the spine! I have no idea what this, or what its for, or what it accomplishes. The abductees don't know. I don't know. Most abductees will say this, your guess is as good as mine as to what this means, but it is an odd detail that they all say essentially.

They will do all sorts of other investigations. They'll do a cursory look everywhere, then they go up to the head area, look in the nose, look in the eyes, often at times with an instrument that resembles an ophthalmoscope, that is to say that little device that has a light on the end of it that a physician looks in your eyes with, or he'll do the same thing with an instrument in your ears with another instrument that does in fact resemble an aura scope which looks in your ears. Often they won't do that they'll just look in and then they'll take an instrument and they'll do something that most people that have had abduction experiences described.

They have a long instrument with a needle, a long needle at the end of it and at the end of the needle is a tiny little ball. Lets just say it looks like a beady tiny little ball bearing. They say they bring this needle like instrument and put it close to their nose, put it up their nose, they can feel, hear a crunching sound as it goes way up their nose, way up somewhere. Then they withdraw the instrument and the little bulb end is gone. We assume, obviously its been left behind. 'Same thing happens in the ear, goes past the eardrum, there's a curious sound, as it smashes past the eardrum, I guess. Both these cause bleeding, not always, but people that have these experiences will often wake up with massive amounts of blood on their pillow and bed from their ear or their nose, this is not unusual. This is the so called implant that everybody's been looking for. We feel that most people who are abductees do have some sort of device like this.

We don't know what this device is, it could be, as we were discussing before a tracking device, its possible. Yet, for instance, I have a case where a person was abducted, she was actually camping, she was in a tent with her friend, and they took this device out, and they didn't put it back in, and the next day she could breathe for the first time. She wasn't having sinus trouble like she always does, it was amazing. She popped into her boyfriends, it must be the air or something, she could just breathe, it was wonderful. The next night when she had another abduction and they stuck it back in, everything was back to normal for her. The point is, if it were a tracking device she could have just got up and left, they never would have found her, but apparently they had little concern for that.

We don't really know what these devices are for and neither do the abductees. The problem is trying to find, particularly when an abductee is young, is they will simply take a, I don't know if you'd call it a biopsy or what, they'd take a tissue sample. Often times its a persons leg, back of the knee, calf area, sometimes the thigh, sometimes arm, those are the major areas. There's no pain, there's no bleeding, a scar forms literally overnight. This of course is medically impossible, this can't be and yet it is.

I once had a case where a young man came, he was twenty six years old, and he had a scar from his sideburn all across his cheek all the way to the corner of his mouth. It looked like a duelling scar or something. Its the first thing you notice when you saw him and your eyes go right to it, there's no way you could avoid it, and I said, in my tactful way, "where did you get that?" And his answer was "I don't know." And I said, "when did you get it?". He said, "when I was twelve." I said, "well what were the circumstances?". "I woke up one morning and there it was!" We get these all the time, but why this happens, once again, we do not know, this is basically what the abductees tell us.

Now the exams are over, because I rushed a lot through this. For those of you who have small children in the room there will be some sexual material coming up, this is your decision one way or the other. A taller being comes out of the house, a taller being comes out of the room I should say. The reason I say this is because some of the sexual material is fairly explicit. The taller being looks like these other beings but he's two to four inches taller. He, seriously, looks like these smaller beings. The smaller beings are grey, they've got big, they're sort of what you would assume when you think of aliens. They are bald, they have large black eyes, no nose, no mouth to speak of, very thin, thin tubular necks, thin bodies, thin arms, thin legs, they're the ones that do the examination, usually. Sometimes the taller big one does it as well. Now the taller being comes out, he comes directly over to the person laying on the table and begins the first mental procedure, and now we're going to have a series of them.

STARING PROCEDURES

They stare at the person laying on the table, but not staring in the way that, when I first did this, the way I was thinking of. They come directly to the abductees face and peer into their eyes. The abductee cannot close his or her eyes, they can't look away and the distance is one inch. Touching foreheads, they're right there, right in the face, staring directly for long periods of time. Several things happen, this is a procedure I have called in my own, 'pop psyche way', popular psychology, because I couldn't think of another word to use and I hate that word and I can't think of anything else. Its something I call mind scan which causes hysteria. Several things happen in that persons mind. They know, first of all, its extremely traumatic, nobody likes it. Its the one thing that's the most influential about this primary experience, is in their minds. People who've had abduction experiences often close their eyes when they go to sleep they'll suddenly see two eyes looking at them, and what they're remembering is part of this mind scan thing, even though they don't know it, but we find it out.

They'll say the guy is taking memories from me, he's flashing, they can see memories being flashed through their minds. He's extracting data from them in some way, they don't know what or how. They know in some way he's attached himself, he's tapped into memory banks. We don't know how memory works so using the word banks is going to be a misnomer, but their memories in some way. They'll do this for a while and then with women we begin to get something else this can go up just a little bit, what I call a bonding procedure, where I'll say to this woman, "while all this is going on what's going on in your mind? "Oh, I feel that there is a sexual kick to it". I'll say, "what do you think about this person who's doing this?" Who is, for all intents and purposes, is a bug eyed monster!. Well, they will say, "Oh, I like him. I quite like him. I think he's a good person. I wonder if he likes me, I hope he likes me". And they'll say "I love him. I feel like I love him". This is a

BONDING PROCEDURE

This is wildly, wildly inappropriate to the sequence of events obviously!. This makes no sense whatsoever, these people are in a state of trauma, usually, and to have these feelings which are simply being elicited is something that doesn't make any sense at all. If the feelings go any higher there is a definite sense of sexual arousal, how high does this sexual arousal go? All the way!, not always but enough times now that I understand that this is much more frequent than I even put in the book., and I've now been realising that this is something that does happen quite a bit.

At the peek of sexual arousal, without even using the 'O' word, the tall being immediately goes down and collects an egg from the woman. Why this happens we have absolutely no idea. However, person after person, after person, says this. Nobody knew this before and yet they all say it. Sexual arousal makes them angry and humiliated and this is extremely traumatic. This is not something people look forward to, they endure it until its over, you know what I mean, this is not some sort of a fantasy in other words. This is something that is very, very difficult for them to deal with.

DERBY SKYCAMERA: The skycamera picked up a mystery object this morning (5th June). A white dot, moving slowly, too slow for a satellite, possible a helicopter, but no record found on aircraft movement info.

It actually appeared twice, moving south easterly at 1.09am and 1.18am.

It could have been the same object or there could have been two of them?

(Enhanced to show pattern) Not a Chinese Lantern this time.....(Paul).

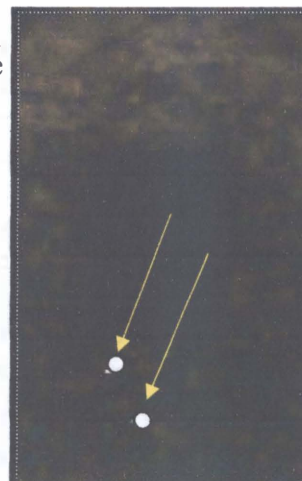

There was also a report of three balls of light in the sky over Derby on 1st June at 0005am. Two of the balls of light then suddenly shot away at high speed.

Space Weather News for June 4, 2015

<http://spaceweather.com>

Earth is entering a stream of debris from an unknown comet, and this is causing one of the most intense meteor showers of the year. Ironically, most sky watchers won't notice because the shower peaks in broad daylight. We only know it's happening because a radar in Canada is picking up echoes from meteoroids streaking through the blue sky overhead. Astronomers call these meteors "Arietids" because they emerge from the constellation Aries not far from the June sun. For observing tips on how you might be able to see earth grazing Arietids just before sunrise in the mornings ahead, visit <http://spaceweather.com>

UFO Sighting 1955: Disc-Shaped Seen By Senator Richard Russell In The USSR

On October 4, 1955, just after 7 P.M, while on a train, the senator gazed out a window to the south. To his amazement, his eyes focused on a huge disc-shaped object ascending slowly as a flame shot from underneath it. Then, the object raced north in front of the train across the tracks.

The first one ascended vertically, at a slow speed, with its outer surface slowly revolving to the right, at an altitude of 6000 feet. The second flying disc has performed the same action. Russell dashed to alert his 2 companions, who looked out to see the second disc. As soon as they were out of Russia, the astounded trio reported the sightings to the U.S. Air Force, but the U.S. government has made the UFO sightings in secret for about thirty years.

APOLOGIES FOR THE LATE ISSUE OF THE OVNI, due to your Editor being hospitalised for a few days. Now recovered!

The next PRA meeting will take place at the 'Victory Club'
